I AM INNOCENT: House Majority Leader Tom DeLay speaks to the media after being indicted on a conspiracy charge. DeLay vehemently denied the charge.

DELAY CHARGED

Majority leader blames indictment on 'fanatic' prosecutor

WASHINGTON | House Majority Leader Tom DeLay was indicted by a Texas grand jury Wednesday on a charge of conspiring to violate political fundraising laws, forcing him to temporarily step aside from his GOP post. He is the highest-ranking member of Congress to face criminal prosecution.

A defiant DeLay said he had done nothing wrong and denounced the Democratic prosecutor who pursued the case as a "partisan fanatic." He said, "This is one of the weakest, most baseless indictments in American history. It's a sham."

Nonetheless, DeLay's temporary departure and the prospect of a criminal trial for one of the Republicans' most visible leaders reverberated throughout the GOP-run Congress, which was already struggling with ethics questions surrounding its Senate leader.

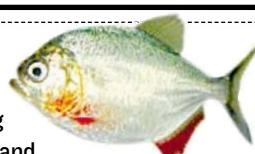

Republicans quickly moved to fill the void, while voicing polite support for DeLay. Speaker Dennis Hastert named Missouri Rep. Roy Blunt to take over most of DeLay's leadership duties.

Ronnie Earle, the Democratic prosecutor in Austin who led the investigation, denied politics was involved. He has noted previously that he has prosecuted many Democrats in the past.

DeLay, 58, was indicted on a single felony count of conspiring with two political associates. The two previously had been charged with the same conspiracy count. The indictment stems from a plan DeLay helped set in motion in 2001 to help Republicans win control of the Texas House in the 2002 elections for the first time since Reconstruction. CARGO | Box of Pain A routine check of a shipment at Manila's airport turned bloody last weekend when a piranha sprung up and bit one of the inspectors. "I was checking one of the boxes when suddenly, something leaped out of it and bit me," inspector Mario Trio said. The bite left a V-shaped wound on his finger, and the 34 piranhas in the consignment he was checking — falsely declared as "ornamental fish" — were confiscated. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

The Right to Remain Unadmired

A Halifax, England, hospital has banned cooing at newborn babies because of fears their human rights were being breached, the Press Association reported. Calderdale Royal Hospital prohibited people from asking mothers about their babies or looking at them in the maternity wards — because, it said, these actions disrespected the babies' dignity. The staff even created a doll that carries the message, "What makes you think I want to be looked at?" "These are little people with the same rights as you or me. ... people sometimes touch or talk about the baby like they would if they were examining tins in a supermarket," said hospital manager Debbie Lawson. ## That Behavior Isn't Going to Cut It Here

The family of an Omaha, Neb., first-grader is filing a lawsuit about his suspension Monday for having a butter knife in his book bag, KETV-TV reported. Ethan Gray, 6, had set his pack on the cafeteria floor when a butter knife fell out and was spotted by teachers. Police were called and the school system suspended him; Gray's 4-year-old brother put the knife in the bag, his parents said. "He's going to be labeled as a kid who brought a weapon to school," said Ethan's mother, Lynette Gray. The school system says any knife brought to school is a weapon. (EXPRESS)

Wait Till We Get Our Heinous Color on You

The Ventura, Calif., sheriff's department came up with a bright idea to stop male inmates from taking county-issued underwear when they get out of jail: Socks, skivvies and shirts are now dyed orange. Some $50,000 is spent each year for inmate underwear, and "we just keep losing horrendous amounts of that property," said chief deputy Kathy Kemp. About 1,400 male inmates will get orange undergarments; inmates who change from their jail jumpsuits to their street clothes will now stand out in bright orange. (AP)

DeLay's Woes Bad News for GOP

Analysis: Charges add to string of political blows

WASHINGTON | Drip, drip, drip. The criminal conspiracy indictment against Tom DeLay adds to the political water torture of Republicans, the party in power that stands to lose if the public's mood continues to sour.

Voters are turning against the Iraq war, fretting about the economy and losing faith in their political leaders.

Less than a year ago, President

Bush won re-election and the GOP picked up seats in the House and the Senate, raising hopes in conservative circles that Republicans could control Congress and the White House for a generation or more.

Suddenly, they're worried about clinging to power beyond the 2006 and 2008 elections. "We can still stabilize the situation and make it right, but there's no question that this is a rough patch," said Republican consultant Joe Gaylord, an adviser to former House Speaker Newt Gingrich.

A confluence of events — the spate of GOP scandals, the rising death toll in Iraq, the lethally slow response to Hurricane Katrina and a steep decline in consumer confidence with the economy — has shifted the political landscape.

Four in 10 voters want to cut spending in Iraq to pay for Katrina recovery, according to an AP-Ipsos poll last week. Two-thirds of voters say the president is spending too much in Iraq.

Polls show voters are disenchanted with both parties, their faith in government is low and they want bold, bipartisan action to resolve the nation's problems. RON FOURNIER (AP)

Governors Plead for Hurricane Aid

Officials ask Congress for economic, tax aid to bring back jobs

WASHINGTON | Gulf Coast governors pleaded with Congress on Wednesday to provide economic and tax incentives to bring back investments and jobs needed for their states to recover and rebuild after Hurricanes Katrina and Rita.

Louisiana Gov. Kathleen Blanco told the Senate Finance Committee her state lost 25 percent of its business economy when Katrina hit Aug. 29 and left New Orleans flooded. After Rita hit the western part of the state last weekend, and re-flooded parts of New Orleans, Blanco said the estimated loss increased to a third of the business economy.

"It's very important to have incentives for our workers to return, and in order to do that, we have to have incentives for business to return," Blanco said, asking specifically for business tax write-offs for new investments and emergency business loans.

Mississippi Gov. Haley Barbour and Alabama Gov. Bob Riley, testifying before the finance committee via a teleconference hookup, echoed Blanco's plea for help in revitalizing their private sectors. (AP)

FEMA'S BROWN WAS WARNED OF PROBLEMS BEFORE KATRINA

FORMER FEMA DIRECTOR Michael Brown was warned weeks before Hurricane Katrina hit that backlogged computer systems could delay supplies and put personnel at risk during an emergency, according to an audit released Wednesday.

An internal review of the Federal Emergency Management Agency's information-sharing system shows it was overwhelmed during the 2004 hurricane season. The audit was released a day after Brown vehemently defended FEMA for the government's dismal response to Katrina, blaming state and local officials for the chaos during and after the Aug. 29 storm. (AP)

Dems Eye Next Nominee Warily

Senators vow to fight if hard-right conservative is picked for high court

WASHINGTON | With chief justice nominee John Roberts' confirmation guaranteed, Democrats on Wednesday promised a battle if President Bush's next nominee is a hard-right conservative.

"If the president sends us a nominee who is committed to an agenda of turning back the clock on civil rights, workers' rights, individual autonomy or other vital constitutional protections, there will likely be a fight," said Sen. Charles Schumer of New York, chairman of the Democrats' Senate campaign committee and a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Schumer's remarks came as Republicans lavished praise on Roberts and urged Democrats to provide respectful debate on Bush's next Supreme Court pick.

Republicans called for Democrats to stay away from making decisions based on partisanship.

"I'm hopeful through the debate on this nominee, and the next Supreme Court nomination, we can avoid the destructive partisanship that approached the brink of absolutism in ideology," said Sen. Pat Roberts, R-Kan. JESSE J. HOLLAND (AP)

Bomber Hits Afghan Army

Rare suicide attack near training center in Kabul leaves 9 dead

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | A uniformed man on a motorbike detonated a bomb Wednesday outside an Afghan army training center where soldiers were waiting to take buses home, killing nine people and wounding 28 in a rare suicide attack.

The blast broke 10 days of relative calm after landmark parliamentary elections and underscored the terrorist threat still facing Afghanistan as it slowly moves toward democracy. It also added to fears that insurgents here are copying tactics used in Iraq.

A purported Taliban spokesman claimed responsibility and threatened more suicide attacks. His account of the bombing differed from those of witnesses, however, and his claims could not immediately be verified.

President Hamid Karzai con-

MILITARY TARGET: Afghan and Norwegian soldiers close a road on the outskirts of Kabul after a suicide bomber on a motorcycle attacked a military training center.

demned the attack in "the strongest terms" as he ordered authorities to investigate.

The attack targeted the U.S.-trained Afghan National Army, which currently numbers about 30,000 and is a key plank of efforts to rebuild the country.

Kabul — patrolled by NATO peacekeepers — is regarded as one of the country's safest places. The last major explosion here was in August 2004, when a car bomb tore through the office of a U.S. contractor providing security for Karzai, killing 10 people. AMIR SHAH (AP)

Ivorian President Won't Go to Summit

LAGOS, NIGERIA | Nigeria will host a heads-of-state summit Friday on war-torn Ivory Coast despite the Ivorian president's refusal to attend, the head of the regional body organizing the meeting said.

In a televised speech Tuesday, Ivorian President Laurent Gbagbo said the 15-nation Economic Community of West African States had failed to broker peace in Ivory Coast and accused some of its members of supporting rebels. He also said elections set for Oct. 30 would be postponed.

"Certainly there will be a summit," ECOWAS chief Mohammed Ibn Chambas said Wednesday.

In Ivory Coast's main city, Abidjan, presidential spokesman Dakoury Gnabro confirmed Gbagbo would not attend. (AP)

Investors' Filings Generate Delay In Parmalat Trial

MILAN, ITALY | Parmalat's former chairman Calisto Tanzi appeared briefly in a packed courtroom Wednesday while angry investors crowded outside for the opening of a trial into the massive fraud at the dairy empire.

Tanzi, who also founded Parmalat, sat quietly through an hour of the hearing. Lawyers representing some of the tens of thousands of investors who lost savings requested that their clients be listed as civil plaintiffs in the case.

Tanzi and 15 others are accused of market rigging, providing false accounting information and misleading stock market regulators in the scandal dubbed "Europe's Enron."

The trial was adjourned until Dec. 2 to allow court officials time to study requests by the investors' lawyers. (AP)

Female Bomber Kills 6 in Tal Afar

Woman dressed as a man slips into line of Iraqi army recruits

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | A woman disguised in a man's robes and headdress slipped into a line of army recruits Wednesday and detonated explosives strapped to her body, killing at least six recruits and wounding 35 — the first known suicide attack by a woman in Iraq's insurgency.

The attack in Tal Afar near the Syrian border appeared aimed at showing that militants could still strike in a town where U.S. and Iraqi offensives drove out insurgents only two weeks ago. A female suicide bomber may have been chosen because she could get through checkpoints — at which women are rarely searched — then don her disguise to join the line of men, Iraqi officials said.

Iraq's most notorious insurgent group, al Qaeda in Iraq, claimed responsibility for the attack in an Internet statement, saying it was carried out by a "blessed sister."

U.S. and Iraqi troops swept through Tal Afar in a Sept. 8-12 offensive, with Iraqi authorities claiming nearly 200 suspected militants were killed and 315 captured, though many of the insurgents in the town escaped. Since then, the bulk of the forces participating in the offensive withdrew, though a U.S. base remains.

It was the first known time that a woman has succeeded in carrying out a suicide bombing in Iraq since the insurgency began, though it was not the first attempt.

In March, four women, reportedly sent by the insurgent group Islamic Army in Iraq, were caught in a town south of the capital before they could set off belts laden with explosives that they were wearing.

Scientists Catch Giant Squid on Film

Japanese team reveals first known photos of rare creature in wild

TOKYO | When a nearly 20-foot-long tentacle was hauled aboard his research ship, Tsunemi Kubodera knew he had something big. But what came next excited him most — hundreds of photos of a purplish-red sea monster doing battle 3,000 feet deep.

It was a rare giant squid, a creature that until then had eluded observation in the wild.

Kubodera's team captured photos of the 26-foot-long beast

The team filmed the squid attacking its bait in deep waters off Japan's coast.

attacking its bait, then struggling for more than four hours to get free. The squid pulled so hard on the line baited with shrimp that it severed one of its own tentacles.

For centuries giant squids, formally called Architeuthis, have been the stuff of legend. But they had never been seen in their natural habitat, only caught in nets or washed ashore dead or dying.

The Japanese team, capping a three-year effort, filmed the creature in September of last year, finding what one researcher called "the holy grail" of deep-sea animals.

The results were not announced until this week, when they were published in Wednesday's issue of the British journal, the Proceedings of the Royal Society B: Biological Sciences. ERIC TALMADGE (AP)

Turkish Women Confront Hughes On War in Iraq

ANKARA, TURKEY | Sent to improve America's image in the Muslim world, President Bush's public relations chief stressed the need for better dialogue in her brief address Wednesday to Turkish women activists.

What Karen Hughes got back was a barrage of criticism about the U.S. war in Iraq.

Speaking with about two dozen women, Hughes said that one of the key ways to improve ties was to "foster dialogue between my country and the people of Turkey."

First among the respondents was Serpil Sancar. "I am not anti-American," she said, but "I am anti-war and anti-violence."

Hughes — who concluded her Mideast tour Wednesday — admitted that "obviously we have a public relations challenge here in Turkey as we do in different places throughout the world." (AP)

Kremlin Widens Grip on Energy Sector

MOSCOW | Russia's state gas monopoly Gazprom struck a deal Wednesday to pay $13.01 billion for control of the private Sibneft oil company, consolidating the government's grip over the strategic energy industry.

The biggest purchase in Russian corporate history will give President Vladimir Putin's administration authority over about a third of the nation's crude oil output — a total that has soared since the Yukos oil giant was largely renationalized last year.

Gazprom signed the agreement Wednesday with Sibneft's owner, Millhouse Capital — a holding company controlled by billionaire Roman Abramovich, believed to be among a handful of tycoons on good terms with the Kremlin. (AP)

Mayor's Decision Expected

Many predict Williams to reveal today he will not seek re-election

WASHINGTON | D.C. Mayor Anthony A. Williams has asked longtime supporters, major donors and members of his cabinet to gather today in Southeast Washington for an "important event" where many expect him to announce that he will not seek re-election.

Over the past few days, with rumors swirling that an announcement was finally imminent, Williams' chief of staff and other top aides have called and e-mailed dozens of people to invite them to a new community center in the Hillcrest neighborhood, where Williams' career as mayor was ignited seven years ago.

Rock Newman, whose decision to support Williams in 1998 helped raise the candidate's profile east of the Anacostia River, said he was contacted in Las Vegas to attend the function and would not be surprised if the mayor stepped down. "If he decides not to run, I definitely respect that decision," Newman said. "As far as I'm concerned, he's done an extraordinary job."

At a news conference on Wednesday, Williams refused to respond to questions about his intentions, not even confirming the meeting at the recreation center, telling reporters to stay tuned.

It's Official: O'Malley Kicks Off Md. Gov. Race

BALTIMORE | Mayor Martin O'Malley launched his campaign for governor Wednesday with a brief rally in Rockville near his boyhood home that served as a prelude to a formal announcement scheduled later in the day in Baltimore.

About 100 supporters attended the low-key rally outside the old county courthouse, where O'Malley was introduced by his mother, Barbara, who described him as "a good son, a caring father."

The Democratic mayor outlined some potential campaign themes such as protecting the environment and making college more affordable and talking of the progress Baltimore has made since he was elected mayor in 1999. "It's time to get our state moving forward again," he said. TOM STUCKEY (AP)

Late Payments on the Rise

Surge in overdue credit card bills is linked to gas prices, low savings

WASHINGTON | Charge it! That familiar refrain is producing an unwanted response for more Americans: Your bill is overdue!

Surging energy prices, low personal savings and the higher cost of borrowing have combined to produce a record level of overdue credit card bills.

The American Bankers

Association reported Wednesday that the percentage of credit card accounts 30 or more days past due climbed to an all-time high of 4.81 percent in the April-to-June period. It could grow in the months ahead, experts said.

The previous high of 4.76 percent came during the first three months of the year, in keeping with a generally steady rise over the past several years.

"The last two quarters have not been pretty," said Jim Chessen, the association's chief economist.

Chessen and other analysts mostly blamed high prices for gasoline and other energy products, but said that low savings and higher borrowing costs also played a role.

The personal savings rate dipped to a record low of negative 0.6 percent in July. The negative percentage means that people did not have enough left over after paying their taxes to cover all of their spending in July. As a result, many people appear to have decided to dip into their savings to cover the shortfall.

Apple Says Some iPod Nanos Flawed

SAN FRANCISCO | Display screens crack easily on a small number of iPod Nano digital music players, Apple Computer Inc. acknowledged Wednesday, saying it would replace flawed units.

Apple was responding to a flurry of complaints posted to online forums and community sites about faulty screens on the Nano, the tiny music player the company launched earlier this month to much fanfare. Most of the complaints revolved around screen scratches that made the displays difficult to read.

Apple spokesman Tom Neumayr

Web postings revealed problems with the screen on the new Apple iPod Nano.

said Apple had received few complaints and the only real problem was cracked screens, which would be replaced.

"This has affected less than one-tenth of 1 percent of the total iPod Nano units that we've shipped," Neumayr said.

An Internet site called flawedmusicplayer.com, which had posted complaints about Nano screens, removed them after Apple acknowledged the problem.

"I am very delighted to see Apple take this issue seriously," a note on the Web site said. GREG SANDOVAL (AP)

Protection Still a Concern

Redskins aim to cut down on sacks when hosting the Seahawks

REDSKINS | The jubilation over last week's thrilling win over the Dallas Cowboys had barely faded before Washington Redskins coach Joe Gibbs started picking out the things that went wrong. Five sacks? That's way too many.

"We're concerned there," Gibbs said.

The Redskins have opened with a 2-0 record, but the team has given up eight sacks in those victories, including five against the Cowboys. A total of 14 NFL teams have allowed five sacks or fewer in their first three games combined.

"We've got to continue to work on our communication," tackle Jon Jansen said. "I think that's the success of any group or unit, whether it's in football or in business or anything, it's communication."

Dallas Cowboys linebacker Dat Nguyen sacks Washington Redskins quarterback Mark Brunell a week ago, one of five sacks allowed by the Redskins in the victory.

Lewis Is Eager to Run Over the Jets

RAVENS | Jamal Lewis has spent much of the past two weeks thinking about his 9-yard rushing performance against Tennessee and his meager average of 2.2 yards per carry this season.

This Sunday against the N.Y. Jets, the Baltimore Ravens running back intends to carry the football more frequently and more effectively.

The Ravens entered the season hoping to add variety to an offense that has depended primarily on Lewis. So in their first two games they attempted 95 passes and ran 55 times, an imbalance that produced two lopsided defeats.

Lewis is averaging 2.2 yards per carry.

Now, following an introspective two-week break, the Ravens intend to get back to the basics in an effort to revive an offense that has scored only two meaningless fourth-quarter touchdowns. "We just need to do what we do best. Our line, they love to lean on guys and lean on defenses and just set that tempo," Lewis said. DAVID GINSBURG (AP)

TODAY'S TV LINEUP

BASEBALL (7P.M. ON COMCAST) Aaron Small can improve to 10-0 when the New York Yankees finish their series with the Orioles. Following the game, New York travels to Boston for the three-game series to decide the AL East.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL (7:30 P.M. ON ESPN)

Colorado State hosts Air Force, which has surprisingly thrown for 200 or more yards in three of their four games this year.

GOLF (4 P.M. ON USA) Brent Geiberger is the defending champion of the Chrysler Classic of Greensboro.

Jansen, who missed all of last season with a ruptured Achilles tendon, is playing with two broken thumbs. Jansen and center Casey Rabach, a free agent signed from the Baltimore Ravens in the off-season, form the starting offensive line along with three starters from last season, tackle Chris Samuels and guards Derrick Dockery and Randy Thomas.

Redskins Hamstrung

The Redskins on Sunday host Seattle (2-1), which has nine sacks this season. Left defensive end Bryce Fisher, who had a career-high 8.5 sacks last year while with St. Louis, has posted a sack in each of the first three games.

"It's been a big emphasis for us this week," Gibbs said. "We need to step it up on pass protection because it's a big deal for us." (AP)

Wizards' Blatche to Miss Camp

WIZARDS | Washington Wizards rookie Andray Blatche will miss training camp while he recovers from gunshot wounds from an attempted carjacking.

Blatche walked under his own power as he visited with teammates at the MCI Center on Wednesday, three days after the shooting and one day after being released from the hospital.

"It's a very scary situation," said Ernie Grunfeld, president of basketball operations. "We're just grateful he didn't get hurt worse than he was."

The 19-year-old forward was shot once early Sunday morning while riding in a car near his home in Alexandria, Va.

"He was in the wrong place at the wrong time," Grunfeld said. "He'll learn from it." (AP)

Donovan McNabb tossed touchdown passes on a broken ankle and played an NFC title game with an agonizing rib injury. Now McNabb is taking his biggest health risk yet: playing with a severe abdominal strain that likely will need surgery and definitely will leave the five-time Pro Bowl quarterback in discomfort and pain all season. Under pressure, MLB union head says drug test deal coming soon

DOPING | The head of the baseball players' union told Congress on Wednesday that a new drug-testing agreement could be reached next month — after he heard Hank Aaron and other Hall of Famers call for tougher steroid penalties.

Commissioners and union leaders from the NFL, NBA and NHL also testified at a Senate Commerce Committee hearing about legislation that would standardize steroid testing in U.S. professional sports. But the focus was squarely on baseball — and, more precisely, on players' association chief executive Donald Fehr.

Lawmakers looking at steroids in sports have focused on baseball since March 17, when Mark McGwire, Rafael Palmeiro, Commissioner Bud Selig and Fehr testified before the House Government Reform Committee. Palmeiro emphatically told Congress he never used steroids; he was suspended Aug. 1 after failing a drug test.

Five weeks later, Selig proposed going from a 10-day ban to 50 games for a first violation, from 30 days to 100 games for a second, and from 60 days to a lifetime ban for a third. Fehr this week outlined an approach that would increase the first penalty to 20 games and wouldn't mandate a lifetime ban. He stressed Wednesday the need for case-by-case examinations.

"Don't you get it?" Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., asked Fehr. "Don't you get it that this is an issue that's greater than the issue of collective bargaining? Don't you understand that this is an issue of such transcendent importance that you should have acted months ago? The patience of this body ... is at an end."

Pressed to say when there will be a new steroids agreement, Fehr said: "Can I give you a precise date? No. Do I expect to know within the reasonably near future whether that will be done? Yes. Would I expect it to be by the end of the World Series? I would certainly hope so."

DEBUT | Tonight, ABC dusts off a cult thriller from the Pet Rock era. "Kolchak: The Night Stalker" ran from 1974 to 1975 and starred Darrin McGavin as a reporter for a Chicago daily paper whose beat took him on frequent trips into paranormal territory.

The new "Night Stalker" (9 p.m., ABC) is set in Los Angeles, where new reporter Carl Kolchak (Stuart Townsend) arrives to investigate the disappearance and murder of a pregnant woman who appears to have been dragged to a remote desert location.

A rival reporter, Perri Reed (Gabrielle Union), finds it odd that Kolchak has developed so many "leads" in so short a time, but she (and we) soon discover that Kolchak lost his own wife under similarly grisly and mysterious circumstances.

The original featured some wise-cracking and offbeat humor, but the new incarnation takes itself terribly seriously. The only mystery left for this "Night Stalker" is how long it can survive in a tough time slot: If viewers want dark, bloody and morbid fare, they've got "CSI." ## Food

Ranch barbecues in the Lone Star state are elaborate affairs

A Texas ranch barbecue once meant a steer, some fire, and a big sky full of stars — all served up with a kettle of charro beans.

These days, things can get a bit more elaborate.

San Antonio caterer Don Strange has been known to bring live armadillos and longhorn cattle as props to ranch barbecues, where the spread may include grilled beef tenderloin, oysters with a Worcestershire-wine sauce and faux white wing doves.

One of his customers' favorites is grilled pizza, with pesto, sun-dried tomatoes and tiny shrimp.

"Barbecue's just sort of a name," said Strange, whose team of cooks and servers has fed celebrities including Larry Hagman and Henry Winkler and has catered a barbecue for President George H.W. Bush on the White House lawn. "It stands for outdoors. You could go and have grilled white wings, sautes. You can let your imagination go."

Chefs who cater ranch or barbecue theme parties provide the mainstays, beef and beans, but from there it's a maverick blend of influences from a state that's flown six flags — including French, Spanish and Mexican.

"Texas is really more about a lifestyle than it is about a certain food," said Fort Worth chef Grady Spears, a restaurateur who is now writing his seventh Texas cookbook.

"The mood is really important," he said. "You just want to make sure people feel at home."

Spears' favorite recipes include flank steak marinated in Dr. Pepper, and red chili enchiladas stacked on steaks, and he uses his ancho pepper-chili paste to flavor just about everything.

There are differing theories about the origins of the term

"barbecue," with some saying the word comes from French or Spanish translations for "head to tail," and others saying the word is American Indian.

The agreement among Texas

foodies is that it should involve some sort of smoking, and is about beef rather than pork, the usual barbecue meat in the South.

Beef brisket and other beef barbecue first became popular in the Rio Grande Valley, where U.S. cattle ranching got its start in the 18th century.

Europeans readily picked up the Mexican methods of smoking and seasoning meat, and Texans insist that their mesquite trees make the best smoke.

Archie McDonald, a Texas history professor at Stephen F. Austin State University in Nacogdoches, said that when Lyndon B. Johnson was president he had mesquite wood flown from this home state to the White House for barbecues.

To McDonald, barbecue is about the sauce. In his northeast Texas, he said, the sauce is thick and sweet, with a lot of brown sugar.

In the Rio Grande Valley, beef for fajitas may be marinated with hot peppers and the juice of a native sour orange. In the bucolic Texas hill country, the sauce may have more of a ketchup base.

Strange believes the struggle for survival and melding of cultures in Texas gave birth to one of the great cuisines of the world.

"They learned how to really survive on what was available here," he said recently. "That really is the basis of most of the great things."

LOOK out

↑ Post-apocalyptic fiction hasn't been the same since the Cold War. Comic book Y: THE LAST MAN, in which all males but one suddenly kick it, restores some of the genre's former glory.

Mission: Readiness

→ Normal flashlights are always tipping over on the Parchesi board you only use during power outages. These LED FLASHLIGHTS can stand alone, like candles, or accompany you on a trip to the circuit breaker. ($48, momastore.org)

* As National Preparedness Month draws to a close — and what a month it was — take a little time to update your emergency plan. These items will stock your bunker for everything from power outages to nuclear winter. HOLLY J. MORRIS

→ These just-add-water ORGANIC MEALS are actually quite tasty — though the seaweed rolls, essentially vegan jerky, had a gnarly aftertaste. ($2.40 to $6.30, maryjanesfarm.com)

NEWS IN BRIEFS ►► YOUR MOST INTIMATES QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Q: Women have Wonderbras. Is there any product for men that would help us falsely advertise our assets?

A: I'll assume we're talking about the assets in the nether regions, not an actual Wonderbra for men. It just so happens that there are products designed to help you put your best foot forward, so to speak. The ADAM BRIEF ($25, adampluseve.com) has a center seam that comfortably (according to my husband, who believes that my job is getting weirder by the day) lifts your boys up and out. It's available in a variety of fits, including mini brief, brief, mini boxer brief and boxer brief. His only complaint is that there's no fly, so going to the bathroom is a bit more of an undertaking than usual. Isn't it a small price to pay, though, for an uplift in your confidence? KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY (EXPRESS)

◀ This reporter has often been mocked for her carefully assembled emergency backpack. The READY FREDDY ($150, readyfreddy.com) exposed that backpack as the rank amateur it is. Five zipped pouches contain over 100 items, all individually wrapped in plastic to stay dry. There's a wind-up radio, military-style rations, a Leatherman-esque multi-tool, even playing cards. And not one item needs a battery — even the flashlight, which runs off magic. (Actually, it runs by shaking a magnet through a copper coil. Or, magic.)

→ "We live in a world where radiation is a reality," gammawatch.com cheerfully states. That's why the GAMMA MASTER has a built-in Geiger counter. ($485)

Beauty

Pro Hair Care With a Fruity Kick

You know L'Oréal Professionnel's KIWI COLOREFLECTOR LINE, for colored hair, is serious because "professional" is spelled all French. The DeepreatMasque ($10) improved dry hair in mere minutes, as did the finishing spray ($14), but the Illuminator Polish ($14) had a harsh, chemical smell. Also, use just a bit too much and you'll look like you showered in Crisco. Visit lorealprofessionnel.com for salon locations. K.P.K.

Tyson's Grows, Big Star Visits

Those who spent their teenage years prowling around TYSON'S CORNER CENTER won't recognize the place after Friday. A new three-level, 362,000 square-foot expansion opens Friday, including over 20 new stores, a kids' play area and a food court. Festivities include a $20 gift card giveaway to the first 500 people in line at the Level 1 interior mall entrance on Friday and an appearance by Star Jones of "The View" Saturday from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Because Star Jones and malls go together like ... two things that don't really go together, actually. Post staff writer BARRY SVRLUGA was online Wednesday to discuss the Nationals' inaugural season as it winds down | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Great moment this year: Frank Robinson's stare down with the home-plate ump.

That was a good one. And one of my favorite quotes of the year came when I went to talk to the ump the next day. He said he felt like Pacino in "Taxi Driver." "What, are you lookin' at me?"

Seminal moment of the season? Sunday, Oct. 2, when I get to say thanks to all the guys who wore the Nationals uniform this season!

I'll be interested to see, with the Redskins game on at the same time, what the response is.

Got a minute to give us a good Eischen moment you recall from the season? Methinks there's a lot out there that didn't make the light of newsprint.

Yes, there are a lot of good Eischen moments that didn't make the light of newsprint. And, of course, there are good reasons they didn't make the light of newsprint. Namely, they're not printable.

Is Ryan Zimmerman the greatest player of all time or merely the greatest infielder of all time?

NAME: Charlie Murphy

GIG: Stand-up comedian and actor

"CHAPPELLE'S SHOW" regular Charlie Murphy brings his signature absurdity to the University of Maryland's Tawes Theatre in a show dubbed the Charlie Murphy and Friends Tour. He spoke to Express about the tour, life as a Murphy and what's next for him without the show.

Where were you before the TV show?

Well, what I was doing before that was movies like "Players Club." I was working, just working hard.

So you weren't a regular on the stand-up scene?

Yeah. I've got a show I've been taking around the country for the last two years now.

horizon?

I'm shooting a sci-fi horror film now. I wrap on Sunday then start this other film called "Barsnobs" which is a comedy in October.

Was it a continuous laugh-fest in the Murphy home?

We graduated from high school a long time ago. So asking what life was like in the Murphy home, that's a weird question. I've been living on my own since I was 17.

At least I didn't ask what it was like living with Eddie.

People ask me that question all the time. I'm like, how do you answer that? What's it like to be anyone else's brother? I mean, your brother's your brother.

So nothing out of the ordinary?

I would say it was pretty normal around the crib. In most black households you have somebody in the family who's gifted in some way; they either play an instrument or they play a sport or they do something. In our house it was Eddie. He was the one that wanted to be on television, the one that was interested in the arts back then.

What should audience members expect from the tour?

They should expect to laugh. I'm a comedian. I'm not a gimmick. I'm the real deal. I come and do my thing like anybody else. I've more than proven myself time and time again across the country. This is my first time coming to your guys' way, but guess what, I hope to make friends and be welcomed back when I return.

Is it solely stand-up?

People that like me like me for a variety of reasons — they either like characters I do, they've seen films I was in, they've seen Chapelle's show or my real personality; they like it all. So I give them a little bit of all of that. I give 'em some characters, some Charlie, some topics and I keep it funny.

Detroit Modern-Soul City

Eclectic Platinum Pied Pipers add flesh and blood to the decks

MUSIC | It ain't easy being hyped as the next big thing months before your debut hits the streets. The build-up is intense — and if the album doesn't measure up, the backlash can be even more extreme.

Several months ago, Platinum Pied Pipers released "Triple P" (Ubiquity), one of the most hotly anticipated R&B/hip-hop debuts of the year.

With so much hype surrounding the duo's knack for infusing on-hands musicality into cutting-edge studio productions, Waajeed and Saadiq were crowned as another jewel in Detroit's modern-soul scene.

For the most part, they delivered. "Triple P" channels a wealth of Detroit's enormous musical history.

SOUND AND FURY: In the Pipers' hands, hip-hop and R&B mix it up with live music.

The disc amazingly evokes the soulful harmonies and solid songwriting of Motown, the studio wizardry of electronica and the fury of hip-hop.

Not too many R&B/hip-hop albums begin with something as rugged as "Shotgun Intro" and end with a shimmering faux-jazz take on Paul Simon's "50 Ways to Leave Your Lover" — and deliver an intoxicating makeover of Lenny Kravitz's "Flowers for Zoe" for an encore.

Waajeed and Saadiq didn't achieve the disc's greatness alone. They recruited singers Georgia Anne Muldrow, Tiombe Lockhart, Rogier and Steve Spacek and rappers Invincible and Ta'raach. With luck, some of these musicians will be on board at the Black Cat, so PPP can live up to the hype onstage as they've sublimely done on record.

Chivalric Verses

Coldplay's Chris Martin revives the art of courtly love on record and in life

MUSIC | If you're gonna fish, you gotta use the right bait.

Should your idea of romantic companionship be a uni-browed lager lout with a nearly psychotic sense of self-importance, by all means, spin the Oasis.

But if you've got designs on a fairy-tale princess, swan-necked and golden-tressed, who'll magically retain the aura of virginity after giving birth to an enchanted Apple, Coldplay's your lure of choice.

What worked for Gwyneth will work for the thousands of women who'll fill Nissan Pavilion Friday for what amounts to an evening of audio aromatherapy. Ladies, you'll love it better than a good cry, a warm bath and three dozen vanilla-nutmeg candles. Reluctant boyfriends, bide your time. Coldplay'll get you luckier than rose petals on the duvet and a shopping spree at Anthropologie. Promise.

There was a supremely awkward moment on "The Daily Show" recently, when Jon Stewart asked Paltrow whether Chris Martin serenaded her during their courtship. In that icy-meets-coy way of hers, she turned the questioning back on her host, but what everyone was thinking was this: Have you looked at her? Listened to the records? He was singing about her before they met!

On "Parachutes," "Shiver" goes about as far as a she-doesn't-know-I-exist song can without getting all creepy and stalkerish. Martin spends the rest of the album suffering and questing and hanging the moon for his lady fair. And on the follow-up, "A Rush of Blood to the Head," he's all vulnerability, penitence and patience.

"X&Y" was the feel-ethereal hit of the summer, and again one man come in the name of love. But the Kate Bush-y bridge of "Speed of Sound" and the Kraftwerk-donated hook of "Talk" are at least new spices for Martin & Co.'s U2-riffic stew.

Although the lads split songwriting credits, probably about as many people can name all four members of Coldplay as can rattle off Lance Armstrong's Tour de France support roster. The job of Guy Berryman, Jon Buckland and Will Champion (really — we looked it up) is to create a shimmering silver void in which Martin's aching falsetto can wander lonely as a cloud.

By this point, dudes between relationships are wondering: What's in it for me? Is it worth going stag?

Absolutely. Third-wheel roommates will be available. The look you'll want to cultivate is kindly and underfed, tending toward scrawny — hurt but not unhealable. Your attitude, however, is all about her. Your mantra:

I hear you, I understand. I'll do anything to make it better. GLENN DIXON

→ Nissan Pavilion, 7800 Cellar Door Drive, Bristow, Va.; Fri., 7:30 p.m., $34.50-$69.50, with Rilo Kiley; 800-551-7328.

The Duke Ellington Jazz Festival puts D.C. in the spotlight

FESTIVAL | Finally, Washington, D.C. is getting a serious jazz festival on par with ones in New York, San Francisco and Chicago. It's the first Duke Ellington Jazz Festival, in which a sterling roster of talent will perform in various venues including Blues Alley, Twins Jazz Club, Bohemian Caverns, Lincoln Theater, the Smithsonian Jazz Café and the Kennedy Center, between Sept. 28 and Oct. 2.

Ever since the demise of District Curators' annual July 4th World Jazz Festival, in 1999, which showcased a whirlwind of top-notch mainstream and avant-garde jazz talent on Freedom Plaza, the District has somewhat lost its spot on the jazz festival circuit.

The Duke Ellington Jazz Festival hopes to fill that void by steering clear of the narrowly focused programming of the Mary Lou Williams Women in Jazz Festival and the smooth jazz schlock of the Capital Jazz Festival, and by recruiting a dynamic array of musicians, ranging from the legendary pianist Dave Brubeck to fusion guitar hero Larry Coryell.

You're guaranteed to hear some of the most thrilling modern jazz

JOHN ABBOTT

from saxophonist Wayne Shorter's galvanizing quartet and pianist Jean-Michel Pilc. Also on tap is the Dirty Dozen Brass Band, with its infectious rhythms and divine melodies, and the Latin syncopation of the Chico O'Farrill Afro-Cuban Jazz Orchestra.

The festival doesn't leave out exceptional local talent. Singer Sunny Sumpter, pianist Larry Willis and saxophonist Antonio Parker will be on board as well. JOHN MURPH → See www.dejazzfest.org for a complete list and schedule.

HEADS UP: Anyone who can stretch one column for 51 years is OK by us. Humorist Art Buchwald will discuss his "Beating Around the Bush" at Politics & Prose, 5015 Connecticut Ave. NW; Thu., 7 p.m., free; 202-364-1919.

You Never Know

Are Davy Rothbart's stories real? Does it matter if they're not?

PAGES | The lone surfer of Montana, Kansas? He's a real kid, according to Davy Rothbart, author of a short-story collection by the same name — one who so yearned for the sea that he strung a surfboard between two tractors to practice his moves. Then, startled to notice a couple watching him ride amber waves of grain, he wiped out. Hard.

It was an inauspicious start to a surfing career. But Rothbart's collection marks quite a start to his own career as a writer of fiction. Friday, he visits Washington to read work that's been praised by both Arthur Miller and Judy Blume.

What could unite America's greatest playwright and children's author? Both were fans of Found magazine. In it, Rothbart imagined the backstories to items found on the street — love letters, school papers, photos, notes ("Don't take matress [sic]. Leanne died on it. Shame on you. Apt. 306").

The same attention to detail undergirds Rothbart's hilarious, heartbreaking stories. If the narrators tend to be restless young men like Rothbart, well, maybe the stories are mostly found, too.

Whatever. As Mitey-Mike, the fast-talking, big-hearted swindler of the opening story says, "If you're going to lie, lie big." Some will call it fiction and laugh along.

And maybe Judy Blume really did get self-professed "young punk" Rothbart drunk on expensive wine at her Key West home, as he claims. And Miller, "He's more of a crack and meth type of guy," Rothbart told Boston's Weekly Dig. "No, no! I actually did meet him once," Rothbart added, "but we never got drunk. Or smoked a blunt, unfortunately."

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 1 • NOON

Artists' Panel Discussion

IN MY LANGUAGE, THERE IS NO WORD FOR ART: A conversation with American Indian artists

FREE! In many Native languages, there is simply no word or phrase that translates directly as "art." Instead, the purpose or creation of a painting, sculpture, textile, or piece of jewelry carries its own contexts and meanings. In this discussion, four award-winning artists will offer unique perspectives and evolving ideas about what defines "Indian" art.

Presented with the Smithsonian's National Museum of the American Indian

SEPTEMBER 29 - OCTOBER 2 • 11 A.M. - 5 P.M.

Photography Exhibition

FREE! The All Roads Photographers Program seeks out and encourages a new generation of underrepresented minority-culture photographic storytellers who are documenting the morphing cultural and physical landscapes in their communities. Work from the 2005 awardees will be on exhibit.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 1 • 2:30 P.M.

Photography Panel Discussion

CAMERA AND CULTURE: The myth of objective documentation

FREE! Is documentary photography inherently objective? Can comprehensive documentation be done through non-native eyes? Is there an unspoken universal morality in documentary work? Take part in a candid panel discussion exploring these issues and more with photography experts. Both photography programs presented with the generous support of Manfrotto.

Men Will Be Girls

An old-fashioned farce complete with stars comes to Ford's

STAGE | All of the stars of "Leading Ladies" were willing to chat during dinner break after rehearsal, but Ian Kahn summed up the play's appeal most succinctly: "There are few things as funny as men trying to be girls."

Audiences can decide for themselves at Ford's Theatre's premiere of Ken Ludwig's farcical gender-bender. The play centers around two hard-up Shakespearean actors, Leo and Jack, (Kahn and JD Cullum) who pose as the nieces of the wealthy Florence (Charlotte Rae) to swindle her inheritance. Things get complicated when Leo and Jack fall for Meg (Tony-winner Karen Ziemba) and Audrey (Lacey Kohl).

If what Kahn says about cross-dressing is true, then the height of comedy must be watching John Astin (TV's Gomez Addams) pursue a man dressed as a girl. Astin's Doc is a "crusty doctor" who also runs the Moose Lodge where Jack and Leo perform.

Doc speaks against love, and at one point is even a lovestruck swain's target. "I think one of the 'heiresses' is enamored of me. I am not aware that there is a male figure under the dress," Astin said.

Jack and Leo might be trying to defraud Mrs. Garrett, but they're nice guys. "He's a dreamer who's really down on his luck who finds his way because of Meg," Kahn said of Leo and his theater-aspiring sweetheart.

CROSS-DRESSING FOR FUN AND PROFIT: In "Leading Ladies," two men who want money dress as women, then fall for real women ... suffice it to say zaniness ensues.

"[Meg] is the character in the play who's the most idealistic," Ziemba said, adding that Meg is also "a little gullible."

Meg has some competition on the naivete front in Audrey, Jack's love interest. As Kohl put it, "She still believes that the world is a wonderful place."

Ludwig's compassionate writing behind the farce attracted the actors. "He's ingenious and inspiring at the same time," said Astin, who treks from Baltimore, where he heads John Hopkins University's theater department.

Astin is looking forward to his first time on a D.C. stage. "It's obvious that this is very possibly America's major theater town," he said.

Kahn guarantees that the play will appeal to audiences, too. "More than any other play I've ever been in, this is a crowd-pleaser," he said.

Global Villagers

Brazilian Girls don't play bossa nova, but they are totally boss

MUSIC | Brazilian Girls don't play Brazilian music. In fact, none of the members hail from Brazil, and the quartet features just one female.

But somehow they project a daringness that suggests Tropicália — Brazil's late '60s artistic movement, in which a motley crew of artists infused Brazilian pop with American funk, folk, rock and R&B, igniting a revolution that challenged the country's status quo and infuriated the Brazilian government.

To be sure, Brazilian Girls aren't revolutionaries. But their self-titled disc (Verve/Forecast) certainly flips the bird to the mainstream establishment in its plucky way of mixing French chanson, sleazy funk, queer rock, free jazz and stargazing electronica into a genre-defying concoction that had to be a headache for the record company's marketing department.

Nevertheless, their "beyond category" music has catapulted them to international stardom, thanks, in part, to songs like the enchanting "Lazy Lover" and the jovial, pro-marijuana ditty with the naughty title.

Their debut disc really doesn't do them justice, because in performance they're so theatrical, especially Brazilian Girls' sultry lead singer, Sabina Sciubba, who exhibits an elfin stage demeanor similar to that of Björk and sings, persuasively, in five languages.

This weekend, at the 9:30 Club, 815 V St., NW; Sat., 10 p.m., $15; 703-218-6500. (U St.-Cardozo) their provocative, cosmopolitan flair will allude to one of the country's most fascinating and influential cultural revolutions. JOHN MURPH

Una Fiesta Borincana

Daddy Yankee leads the Puerto Rican reggaeton charge

MUSIC | "Daddy Yankee" sounds like the sort of thing a man would hear in the red-light district of Bangkok, but there's nothing to fear from this moniker.

It is, in fact, the handle of one Raymond Ayala, the first superstar of reggaeton.

Though a kind of Spanish-language reggae was born in Panama more than 20 years ago, after Jamaican workers were hired to renovate the Canal, reggaeton emerged from Puerto Rico as an aggressive, hypnotic blend of hiphop, salsa, bomba, ragga and dancehall, crossing over into non-Latino clubs over the past couple of years.

The reggaeton underground has been bumpin' in San Juan since the mid-'90s, but it was Daddy Yankee's 2004 smash,

CHAD BACHMAN/AP

GET THE PARTY STARTED: As little as a year ago, most North Americans had never heard of reggaeton; it took Daddy Yankee to get the country dancing to it.

"Gasolina," that built the pipeline to the mainland, finding a home on urban radio, going into heavy rotation on MTV and nailing "Barrio Fino" to the Billboard Latin album chart for 62 weeks.

With an insinuating call-and-response refrain, the song is undeniable. When the background hottie whines, "Dame mas gasolina!" even the hardest-hearted Citgo owner in Biloxi would be hard-pressed to turn her down.

It remains to be seen how a heavy, sweaty style tailor-made for the dance club will translate to venues designed for sporting events.

When the "Who's Your Daddy?" tour hits the Patriot Center Friday, will dancers doing an extreme version of dirty dancing tumble down the steps? Or will reggaeton's signature move, the grinding "perreo," be effectively muzzled?

Perhaps Yankee will reprise the fist-pumping sounds that predate his breakthrough. Although "Los Homerun-es" was released statewide this year, its gangsta stylings actually represent the past for an artist whose pop turn has been embraced by everyone from Diddy to Lil Jon.

Opening are Zion y Lennox, lover-men who still keep the reggaeton torch burning brightly.

A 'Firefly' Glows On

Joss Whedon steers 'Serenity' from cult hit to the big screen

RECOUPLING | Joss Whedon is a TV writer/director, creator of the cult hits "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" and "Angel," along with the critically acclaimed but short-lived series "Firefly." After a long battle fought by "Firefly" fans to keep the series alive, Whedon has found a new outlet for his story — a much-anticipated sci-fi movie called "Serenity," after the name of the run-down ship in "Firefly."

How did you get from "Firefly" to "Serenity"?

Originally, it was about finishing the story or maybe doing it on another network or a TV movie. When the opportunity to do it as a movie came, it ... became more of a re-imagining of it without annoying the fans.

It could be considered a dramedy. I loathe things that take themselves too seriously or not seriously enough. I believe there is humor in everything, but also I believe there is great import and meaning. They say, "Choose one!" I will never choose.

Was it hard to work within a two-hour limit?

Yeah ... There was so much life and texture in some of the characters in the show and to take that and distill it and to figure out where your priorities are and what the audience needs to know ... It is incredibly difficult both structurally and emotionally.

If you created a character for yourself, what would he be?

I would be the sexy man. People would wonder, "How did he get so sexy?" No, I was originally going to play Badger in the series — who is kind of like a lowlife.

Is that because you want to play the complete opposite of yourself?

No, no! I am a complete lowlife and I'm not a good actor, so that would be easy for me to play.

I overheard a filmgoer say, "Wow, this is like 'Star Wars' with comic relief." To hear something like that, is it music to your ears?

Yeah, yeah! There was a time when "Star Wars" was "Star Wars" with comedic relief. That time has passed. They're very different. "Revenge of the Sith" ... was about the history-makers, and this movie is about the schleps. PETERSON GONZAGA (VNU ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

Blondes have more (poetical) fun in the play 'Born Yesterday'

STAGE | Remember when people believed it was possible for truth and decency to triumph over greed and corruption? So charming, refreshing — so adorable. That's the world of Garson Kanin's "Born Yesterday," which debuts this weekend at Arena Stage.

The play, adapted for the screen in 1950, is set in 1946 Washington, where dirty businessman Harry Brock (Jonathan Fried) aims to bribe a senator into passing laws that will help him avoid taxes.

All is going well until his mistress, Billie (Suli Holum), embarrasses Brock by acting a bit ditzy at a dinner with the senator. He decides his lady could use some polish, so he rather unwisely hires journalist Paul Verrall (Michael Bakken) to shore up her social skills.

Of course, the naive heroine becomes savvy in the ways of the world without losing her inherent decency. Trite or no, "Born Yesterday" may make folks long for the days when one person could make a difference. ERIN TROMPETER

Two fantasy fiction greats go through the mirror very darkly

FILM | Fans of the dark, the funny, the horrifying, rejoice.

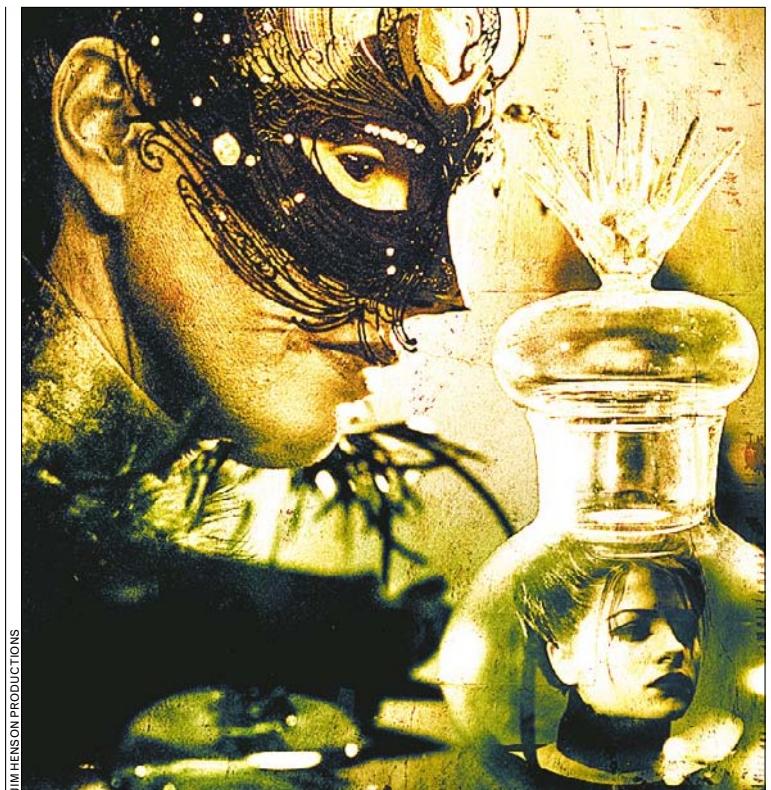

Neil Gaiman, author of the "Sandman" graphic novel series as well as books and short stories, reteams with "Sandman" cover artist Dave McKean for "MirrorMask," a film written by Gaiman and directed by McKean.

"MirrorMask," which opens Friday at E Street Cinema, is the story of Helena, a teenager raised in the circus who longs to run away and join the real world. But she finds nothing real whatsoever in the disturbing "dreams" she begins having, involving two queens, masked people and, naturally, a quest.

McKean had directed before, "a couple of short films," he said during a phone interview, "that I really wanted to make to put myself through homemade film school."

Lisa Henson of Henson Pictures saw one of these and tapped Gaiman to sound him out on the possibility of McKean directing a full-length film; Gaiman offered to write it, and "MirrorMask" was born.

"Neil and I started together and we've kind of grown together," McKean explained. "Many times I've done images and haven't really known why I'd done them, and it turns out there are direct references to those images in the script."

FAIRY TALES' FLIP SIDE: Young Helena is entrusted with a dangerous mission.

The film has the team's signature equilibrium of horror, humor and beauty. McKean's clearly identifiable style — paintings, drawings, found objects and photographs mutated into something ravishing and enigmatic — informs every frame, but the tone is a bit like those Hollywood anomalies, the Henson Production fantasies "Dark Crystal" and "Labyrinth."

Despite the buzz among fantasy geeks, "MirrorMask" isn't getting much fanfare. Yet, McKean doesn't mind that the marketing technique involves "not really telling anything about it."

Still, he added, "If you go out there with trumpets blowing, maybe it would be overlooked. It would be better if people discover it." ARION BERGER (EXPRESS)

Dance, Laugh, Resume Dancing

MUSIC | Imagine Jack Black (slightly less hilarious, but better looking), fronting a disco-besotted, keyboard-drenched, riff-rock band. This band, better known as Electric Six, plays the Black Cat Saturday.

Audiophiles will recall E6's massive "Danger! High Voltage!" — one of the best novelty tunes in recent memory. They continued to score hits in the U.K., but, despite signing to Warner Bros., covering Queen's "Radio Ga Ga" and ardently singing lines like "She don't need no vibrator" to anyone who will listen

(and many who would rather not) they've yet to reclaim the spotlight in the U.S.

Her Daily Obsession opens. HDO get a lot of attention because they produce danceable alt-rock, but mostly because the band's singer, Sarah Madden, is the sister of the very rich, famous, tattooed and philanthropic twins in Good Charlotte. TIM FOLLOS

LOVE ME DON'T: Oasis has done everything to make Americans hate them; if it weren't for that darn melodic knack ....

Monkeytown

MUSIC | You want to hate Oasis. The Brothers Gallagher are insufferable loudmouths with three eyebrows between the both of them. One or the other is clearly caricatured as Charlie Pace (played by former hobbit Dominic Monaghan) on ABC's "Lost." The fact that Paul Anka covered their biggest song should drive the final nail in the coffin. But that song. It's like, thousands-of-monkeys simple, but so hummable. In 20 years, old ladies in Vegas — lighters aloft, panties airborn — will be shrieking "Wonderwall" at fat, balding Noel and Liam. Then will those monkeys get even a tip of the hat from the boys? BOB MASSEY

Zagat Rates Holocaust Museum the #1 National Memorial

"The Museum should be a required visit for all of humanity."

—Zagat Survey, U.S. Family Travel Guide, 2004

Deadly Medicine: Creating the Master Race

Extended through May 29, 2006 Don't miss this special exhibition on Nazism's roots in biology and genetics and how social reform for the "greater good" ultimately led to mass murder and genocide.

The Holocaust (Permanent Exhibition)

Take a self-guided tour of the comprehensive, chronological history of the Holocaust from 1933 to 1945. The exhibition spans three floors and contains an unparalleled collection of artifacts, photographs, films, and eyewitness testimony that personalize the history (free; timed entry passes required).

Remember the Children: Daniel's Story

Experience the history of the Holocaust from the perspective of a young boy growing up in Nazi Germany in this exhibition created especially for families and children.

Genocide Emergency—Darfur, Sudan: Who Will Survive Today?

Genocide is now occurring in the Darfur region of Sudan. Learn why and what you can do, and view artifacts, eyewitness testimony, news reports, and an exclusive display of recent photographs.

Witness to History: Documenting the Path of American Liberators

Follow the path of U.S. soldiers as they liberate Europe from Nazism. See Army Signal Corps photographs documenting their trek and encounters with concentration camps, and view eyewitness testimony from liberators and concentration camp survivors.

Also on display: Abandoned at Srebrenica: Ten Years Later; Antisemitism: Protocols of the Elders of Zion

Eating Around

EAT AND READ

Honey, I Burned 600 Dollars Worth of Morels

Home kitchen mistakes are — with some notable and occasionally flaming exceptions — usually pretty small: Over-salting this, burning that. Typically, the worst that can happen is that someone has to pick up the phone to procure dinner. When professionals screw up, the results are big. Some of the world's best chefs fess up in "Don't Try This at Home: Culinary Catastrophes from the World's Greatest Chefs" (Bloomsbury, $25). Local stars have their place in this volume: José Andrés tells the hilarious tale of dropping a tray full of desserts into a fish tank when he was an apprentice; Citronelle's Michel Richard's catastrophe involves a wedding cake and a couple of dogs. Some stories are tough to relate to (how many times have you been crushed by the words, "The lobsters are off"?). But those problems that stem from impatience or carelessness (or both, in the case of pastry chef Claudia Fleming, who put too many egg whites in a mixer and then left the kitchen, returning to find a menacing blob lurching across the floor), appeal to any home cook who's less than perfect.

IT'S ALL GOOD: Sure, Citronelle chef Michel Richard can laugh about it now, but "Don't Try This at Home" reveals that he's not above blaming his own culinary errors on hungry doggies.

EAT AND WALK

Annual Taste of Bethesda Convenient to Daily Gridlock of Bethesda

Beware if you're considering driving to Bethesda on Saturday, as the 16th annual Taste of Bethesda is set to close much of the Woodmont Triangle area. If you are lucky enough to find a parking spot (parking will be free in public garages) or take Metrorail there, you'll find 50 participating restaurants and perhaps 35,000 people, as organizers are anticipating. Admission is free, but to sample the food, you'll need to buy food tickets. A typical serving will cost you one to three tickets and $5 will get you four tickets. The event starts at 11 a.m. and ends around 4 p.m. MICHAEL GRASS (EXPRESS)

WATCH AND EAT

Donna Forgiven for 'Iron Chef' Blunder — for Now

It looks like D.C. is going to get a chance to make up for the shame of Galileo's Roberto Donna, who appeared on Iron Chef only to crash and burn (he completed only two out of five dishes — an unprecedented shortfall). On Oct. 5, the Food Network will choose between three of D.C.'s top chefs: Ris Lacoste of 1789, Morou of Signatures and Cesare Lanfranconi of Ristorante Tosca. Each of the chefs will prepare a dish using a secret ingredient for the judges; the winner will compete as Chef Challenger on the hilariously over-the-top program. K.P.K.

One Voice, Multiple Suspects

→ ACCORDING TO entertainment lawyer Bertram Fields, the question isn't "Who really wrote Shakespeare's plays?" The question is, "Why are we talking about this?" Good question, and that answer may not be what you think. The author of "Players: The Mysterious Identity of William Shakespeare," does suspect that it wasn't the Will pictured above who penned so many immortal words, and he'll talk about the conclusions to his investigation on Saturday at the Renwick Gallery. ## Sea Shanties & Ballgowns

→ NO ONE HAS BEEN ABLE to explain to us why Decemberists' lead singer does that weird affected thing with his voice. We're not even sure why they bother with the extra "e," thereby de-politicizing their name. But we do know why the Portland, Ore., band's show at the 9:30 Club on Sunday is sold out. That's because the Decemberists' spavined post-rock, carnival marches and upside-down indie rock has a kind of glamour and rigor not often heard among American bands these days. They have songs about ships and politics and love and insecurity, but manage to arrange and perform them so that visions of a splendid, scary, overstuffed attic of a batty recluse come to mind. The only trouble is they're hard to sing along with.

Nightlife agenda

WHAT DO YOU WANNA DO TONIGHT? BY FRITZ HAHN, RHOME ANDERSON AND DAVID MALITZ

THURSDAY

The clock is ticking on those wonderful rooftop events at the HILTON ON EMBASSY ROW. Make the most of the time that's left by heading there tonight for salsa under the stars. Organizer Euronet International has lined up dance lessons from 6:45 to 7:45 p.m., followed by a DJ spinning Latin rhythms until 10 p.m.

FRIDAY

Zap Mama has been in the game for a minute, but they still blow the minds of newbies. Meld hip-hop beats, polyrhythms of the African diaspora, jazz chops and lyrics in four languages and that's the Zap Mama experience. Motor City future funksters Platinum Pied Pipers have the opening slot on the BLACK CAT stage.

DJ Double o7 just started residencies at Eleventh Street on Friday nights and at GUA-RAPO on Saturdays. The soulful four-to-the-floor treats get spun starting around 10 p.m. There's no cover — yet.

FLANAGAN'S IRISH PUB, the oldest bar in Bethesda, is closing its doors for good on Oct. 9. Scythian, the lively Celtic rock-meets-folk band, is playing two shows there in the final 10 days. The Oct. 7 appearance, billed as "The Last Friday at Flanagan's," requires reservations and carries a hefty $30 cover charge, which includes free champagne and souvenirs. If you'd prefer to spend your money at the bar, head over to Flanagan's tonight, where you can just show up and pay $5. The music starts at 9 p.m.

For you romantic types, we're told this may be your last chance to watch the sun set over Rosslyn and the National Cathedral from the rooftop at AFTERLIGHT. Go hang out by the pool, dance to the music of DJ Shawn Greene, eat a fresh-off-the-grill burger and sip a $4 beer or margarita. Doors open at 5.

SATURDAY

Tonight is the start of a new era at GALAXY HUT, as the formerly free venue implements its $5 cover charge for evenings with live music. Locals the Bonapartes will be the proverbial guinea pig for this experiment. The quintet treads in the most familiar en vogue sounds, but it knows its way around a tune, and there's a sort of permeating big rock swagger that helps the group pull it all off.

LAST CALL FOR BEER: Celtic folk-rock faves Scythian help close down Flanagan's Irish Pub in Bethesda on the "Last Friday at Flanagan's" before it re-opens.

Oktobefest season has started at BLOB'S PARK, it's as close as you can get to Oktobefest in Munich without visiting German soil. For the month of October, Blob's Park features special performances by folk dancers and singers. Tonight, it's the Alt Washingtonia Schuhplattler Verein Dancers, and you'll probably find yourself dancing to at least one accordion-fueled number. The entertainment begins at 7 p.m. and costs $7 per person.

If you've noticed that Spin has been a little less annoying lately, that's because Sarah Lewitinn has stopped writing her column, Making Out With Ultragrrrl. Aggravating or not, she still has name recognition, maintains a popular blog, wrote a book, and now has a record label, Stolen Transmission. All this media attention is good news for D.C. band Her Daily Obsession, because Lewitin is using her label to push the group's first single. See if HDO can create the same buzz when opening for a couple of Detroit bands, excellent psych-pop revivalists Outrageous Cherry and over-the-top garage rockers Electric Six at the BLACK CAT.

Nelly's Applebottoms clothing line is looking for new models today at Platinum (see www.applebottomsmodelsearch.com for more information) and then hosting an after-party at H2O. Nelly won't be there, but the outdoor barbecue, open bar and DJs from WKYS will be.

Man, you know the energy crisis is serious when promoters are offering $200 gas cards. Feeling lucky? Fill up the SUV and head down to AVENUE tonight for the new International Saturdays (or Noche Latina, depending which language you prefer to read). Split between hip-hop with DJ Geometrix and Latin tunes from DJ Pana of El Zol (99.1 FM), the night features an open bar until 11 p.m., which is sure to please everyone. Get on the list at www.primop.com, and be in the door by 11:30 p.m. to get your shot at the gas.

13th Annual Concert for Life AIDS Benefit Friday September 30, 2005

Three choruses, 230 voices strong, and orchestra will perform the 13th annual Concert for Life AIDS benefit at 8 p.m. Friday, September 30, 2005 at Foundry United Methodist Church, 1500 16th Street, NW in the District.

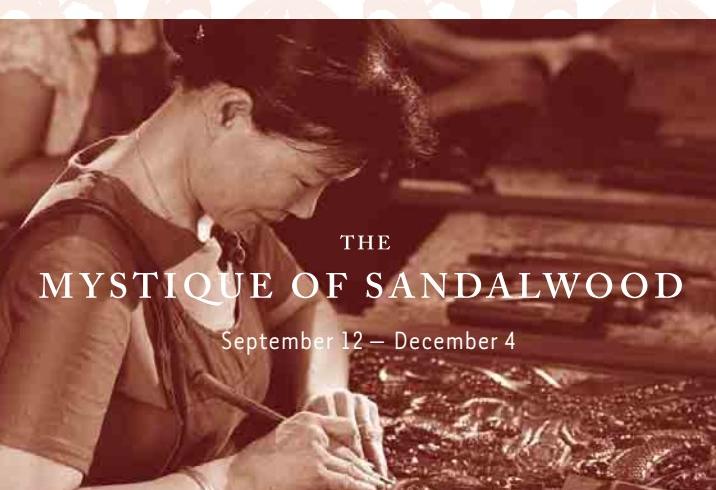

To date, the all-volunteer, non-sectarian event has raised over $500,000, 100% of which has gone to organizations helping people living with HIV/AIDS here in Washington and in Africa.

The musical celebration will include the Foundry Choir and orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Eileen Guenther, The Heritage Signature Chorale with Music Director, Stanley J. Thurston, and the Gay Men's Chorus of Washington with Artistic Director, Jeff Buhrman. The choral finale of the evening will assemble all three choral groups for Aaron Copland's inspiring Promise for Living. John Chester of WGMS Classical 103.5 FM will host the concert.

Proceeds of the 2005 Concert for Life will go to: Whitman-Walker Clinic, The Max Robinson Center, Metro TeenAIDS, Project CHAMP of the Children's National Medical Center, Prevention Works, SMYAL (Sexual Minority Youth Assistance League) HIV Outreach Program, Quality of Life Retreats, Africa University, HIV/AIDS Program (Zimbabwe), Little Angels (South Africa) and the Havens – A Tumelong Organization (South Africa)

Tickets are $50/$75 for concert and reception ($15 for seniors, students and persons living with AIDS). For tickets and information, go to www.concertforlife.org or call 202-332-4010, ext. 606.
